

My Sweet Fracture

Saves the Day

Could you tell me the next time that you're choking?
'Cause I'll rush right over to shove some dirt right down your throat It's nothing I have against you You're just a creep and you can't remember the last five years What's a bond if it dissolves in water?
I took a piss that lasted longer than you and your manipulations
I called my mom last night
She said, "Sweetie, you don't need someone who's more fleeting than fall"
'Cause don't you love those leaves?
Don't you wish the orange stayed forever
And Crickets sang in the night all through winter?"
And I thought, slow down, Chris Think of all the time this jerk has fucked you up and left you down And hey, I choose my company by the beating of their hearts
Not the swelling of their heads Besides, I'd rather forget the days we spent Than try to stay afloat in shallow water.
