

Undress Me

Saves the Day

all i want is you to come undress me laying sideways underneath the windowsill let's not say a thing, no, let's not even think just hold each other here i remember when we met on halloween you and your red dress, your green eyes stared at me the sidewalk yellow stars start to fade into the dark when i first take you in my arms

i never want to let go
all my life i've been alone no one there just to hold there's lines along my face from those endless wasted days showing the sun shines through the shade

no one there to just hold too many faces that turned away start to believe that it's not worth the pain but i know that i love you ohh, all it was is a dream ohh, know you're here with me
