The Main Divide

This tunnel I'm in is way too dark Torches flicker with desperate light When the sun sets and cold winds crawl in Every single night is but a fright

Just show me what you brought Is it the same scar we already know I feel the temptation to take revenge tonight Always forgetting two wrongs don't make a right

This could be mine and this could be yours It comes slowly and then suddenly goes Always disappears like a ghost This kind of magic is too dangerous

Once I followed you and you looked scared Then I saw you in my dream and offered you all I had But we cannot hear each other anymore As I lie in rotten leaves in front of your door

This could be mine or this could be yours It comes slowly and then suddenly flows? Behind all doors there dwells a ghost Every single day I'm gonna break the oath

this tunnel I'm in is way too dark Torches flicker with desperate light When the sun sets and cold winds crawl in Every night is but a fright

The howling injustice and rising hatred Go hand in hand This kind of unity is too fragile From this height it's easy to fall

Insanity, depravity, absurdity As I break into pieces in the gravity of you

This could be mine and this could be yours It comes slowly and then suddenly goes Always disappears like a ghost This kind of magic is too dangerous This could be mine or this could be yours It comes slowly and then suddenly flows Behind all doors there dwells a ghost Every single day I'm gonna break the oath