

For Tomorrow

Shaaman

Long ago, the world was one We walked through the ice
floes
To an unenduring land
Our future, our hope

There was something in the air,
The Age of the Unknown
Far beyond the sea of trees
The vision laid close

"There's a place where the sun shines brighter There's a mountain that climbs to the stars..."

Day and night we built a reign
With
heavenly desire Sweat and dreams made up the bricks
That raised up our walls

Paying tribute to the gods
And blood kept on flowing
And the lust for knowledge
Was the sense of it all

Fly, fly to
the stars,
Reach them on high Bring back the answers of the night
Roll with the clouds, Sing with the birds,
'Cos one day we'll have to say goodbye!

Here we go, carrying no longer sorrow
Standing up in the wind Walk along, marching on for tomorrow
In
this neverending way

Many years of harmony
The
message arrived soon Three big stars lined up together
A chill in the air...

The high-priest was dressed in black

On top of the stairways Longing for the sacrifice
Of those who would dare

Fly, fly to
the stars
Then let it fall Into the emptiness of night
Our time has come
Time to move on
'Cos
one day we have to say goodbye...

Here we go,
carrying no longer sorrow Standing up in the wind Walk
along, marching on for tomorrow
In this neverending way

Come with me to Paradise Let's return
again,
Let's return again!

To be closer to the skies
Living on a dream,
Living on a dream...

Standing up in the wind
this neverending way
