

Second Chances

Shades Apart

I will watch the sky, streetlight's dimly lit
From far away I recognize
Her silhouette with someone else

The temperature outside
Thaws me and frees up the memory
Of everything so far behind

Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me
Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me

I count down the miles, headlights hypnotize
From far away I realize
How she once believed in me

I let it slip right by
Scared of facing insecurities
I locked away so far inside

Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me
Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me

I have memorized all the things she said
And I rehearse it line by line
Syllables of falling breath

The static on the line
Loneliness as open as the air
Between the highway and the sky, yeah

Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me
Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me

Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me
Second chances still waiting
Second chance is still waiting there for me
