

Never Too Late

Shannon Noll

A part unknown so far away
Feels like everything's in vain
'Cause you can't seem to make a change
Can't imagine better days

You're happy man, you wanna be
The scales and stars that you can reach
But you know some day today will be
Just a memory

It's never too late to call
When you can't take anymore
Remember you can break your fall
A little by little
There's a time and place and what I've found
That present time is here and now
It's never too late to take the wheel
And turn this thing around

This loneliness can make you bleed
Though you're burning on empty
You lock the door and throw away the key
Safe inside but you can't breathe

You're not the man you once believed
You've seen some things no one should see
Yeah, and now the future, it ain't
What it used to be

It's never too late to call
When you can't take anymore
Remember you can break the fall
A little by little
There's a time and place and what I've found
That present time is here and now
It's never too late to take the wheel
And turn this thing around

Sometimes you gotta close your eyes
To see the light
And find your wings before you fly

It's never too late to call
When you can't take anymore
Remember you can break the fall
A little by little
There's a time and place and what I've found
That present time is here and now
It's never too late to take the wheel
And turn this thing around
And turn this thing around, yeah

There's a time and place and what I've found
That present time is here and now
It's never too late to take the wheel
And turn this thing around
