Fake

Shinedown

This place has begun to cover me I recall the light, but the dark smothers me I prefer the feelings I know right now I don't worry about feeling very proud

You don't know how it feels To be misunderstood To reach for the sky I thought you never would You don't know how it feels To be misunderstood To reach for the sky I thought you never would

But I'm bleeding, and my hands are bruised From the grip that I once had on you And I'm open for a new way Because there's not much more that I can fake

It's almost seeing your soul for the first time And watching the mirror show you life in rewind Capture the ridicule of everyone I'm tired of trying, and they wonder why I'm gone

You don't know how it feels To be misunderstood To reach for the sky I thought you never would You don't know how it feels To be misunderstood To reach for the sky I thought you never would

But I'm bleeding, and my hands are bruised From the grip that I once had on you And I'm open for a new way Because there's not much more that I can fake

I can't fake it

You don't know how it feels To be misunderstood To reach for the sky I thought you never would You don't know how it feels To be misunderstood To reach for the sky I thought you never would

But I'm bleeding, and my hands are bruised From the grip that I once had on you And I'm open for a new way Because there's not much more that I can fake But I'm bleeding, and my hands are bruised From the grip that I once had on you And I'm open for a new way Because pisnick-akerdy.cc