Olympia Autumn Morning

Shorebirds

Nobody knows except the seagulls and the crows.

Some say the heart is a lonely hunter.

I say its more like winter roadkill.

In the future they will find the silly little scribblings of Mr. always-left-behind.

One day the earth will cough and sneeze and fart
and it won't have mattered that my heart had never played the p art.

It's hard living on your own when you're all alone.

It's hard living alone when the world's so cold.

The world's so cold you can feel it in your bones...

I want to go home.