

The Departure

Signs of Betrayal

Temptation's feeding at the seem I like it when you're sober but tangled in between The patience staring back at me Too afraid to falter with no substance to deem So selfish yet so kind
I will carry the weight upon my shoulders
Just to hear you call my name
Will you carry the blame until the shallowness begins to call your name again?
Intentions safely at the means I've seen it all before when you offered up these dreams Frustrations taking part of me
I was getting closer while you were getting farther
I will carry the weight upon my shoulders
Just to hear you call my name
Will you carry the blame until the shallowness
begins to call your name again?
I'll take part for one more as long as you're attending the depart to be sure we never meet here again Let's give up, let's give in to all the guiltless mendings Let's depart to be sure we never see this ending
I will carry the weight upon my shoulders
Just to hear you call my name
Will you carry the blame until the shallowness
begins to call your name again?