Wirethrone

One night I found what was missing The thread that attaches Us all together Without us knowing Our nexus By this we stand parted We challenge What we do not know These mindless masses Will now take us For a journey Nowhere fast to the end Let nothing lasting remain Ripping the wires, From failing structures And build my self again One night I found what was missing The thread that attaches Us all together Without us knowing Our nexus (chorus) I have never been Alive like this The strings attached I will make my own I have never been Alive like this Behold my legacy I have built a wirethrone My wirethrone My wirethrone One too many times I have failed to answer To your questions why Here on my throne of scorn Concealed walls cannot hide I have torn out, All that supports me To never be whole again The more I am straining, The less I attain What has been built, All in vain The more I am gaining, The less I sustain Another wellspring to drain Solution .45

(repeat chorus)
My wirethrone
The more I am straining,
The less I attain
What has been built,
All in vain
The more I am gaining,
The less I sustain
Another wellspring to drain
(repeat chorus x 2)
