Mandolin

Spandau Ballet

Oh Mandolin, oh mandolin Waiting in the dark Centuries passed down upon Your smooth Venetian skin

Memories oh memories Lay stains upon your heart When lovers dance into the trance You weaved by candlelight

Oh I saw a sunrise like never before As mandolin played I cried for more.

Oh Mandolin, oh mandolin Waiting in the dark Centuries passed down upon Your smooth Venetian skin

Incessant sound, incessant sound That stirs the young and pure Incestuous I kiss my hand And play the calling drum.

The lover cried into the silk
Many years ago
Your voice laid comfort down upon
His European skin.

Oh I saw a sunrise like never before As mandolin played I cried for more. Oh I saw a sunrise like never before As mandolin played I cried for more. Oh I saw a sunrise like never before As mandolin played I cried for more

Oh Mandolin, oh mandolin Waiting in the dark Centuries passed down upon Your smooth Venetian skin.
