I see all your reasons why It's just the way the your memory betrays You're like a second hand at suicide It's just defeat of the image you portray It all serves you But who deserves you? It's how you blur out the vision left inside A clean infection Your misdirection It's you delusion that begins the end of you Now you've fallen to the ground The kill just compensated It's all the endless disconnect That keeps you isolated Break and bleed until you see the light No need struggle 'cause it never seems to fade It all becomes a social suicide Another way to keep your damage on display Your faith is empty Your hope is fleeting I'm not impressed with The way you followed through There's no redemption You're disconnected It's your seclusion That will kill what's left of you Now you've fallen to the ground The kill just compensated It's all the endless disconnect That keeps you isolated Your star's fading You're just a memory And I expected nothing less of you It always bleeds Just for your needs Now I see exactly what you are Now you've fallen to the ground The kill just compensated It's all the endless disconnect That keeps you isolated Now you've fallen to the ground The kill just compensated It's all the endless disconnect That keeps you isolated