Stan Ridgway

Dogs

One dog buries a bone And then the other dog digs it up And finds a prize in store One dog dies and the other dogs Go dig him up a tomb with his name inscribed And there on his tombstone carved so bold The words are clear and strong It says:

This one is for the eyes For the eyes of the other dogs who come It's for the eyes of the other dogs to come One man digs a hole while another man shovels dirt

Inside another hole One man says hello while another one is leaving On a long journey to a place he'll nreturn And there on his tombstone carved so bold The words are clear and strong It says:

This one is for the eyes For the eyes of the other dogs who come It's for the eyes of the other dogs to come One man digs a hole while another man shovels dirt

Every entrance has an exit And every doorknob has a twist I wonder what my face looked like Before it looked like this? And there on his tombstone carved so bold The words are clear and strong It says:

This one is for the eyes For the eyes of the other dogs who come It's for the eyes of the other dogs to come One man digs a hole while another man shovels dirt
