

Crying Out Loud

State Champs

You hate to say it but you're not okay
You love this game but you know that I won't play
She's 23 with a teenage dream
Another pull of this and it's all done
And for the record in her eyes she's second to none
From the pills, cheap thrills and nicotine

It's like I'm digging up a picket fence
There's nothing worse than losing confidence
I still lie awake with the memories

For crying out loud tell me something
You were all that I want but now you made me believe
That I can't depend on anyone after all
For crying out loud what did you think
You say we're changing, and I would agree
But how can you fight the feeling
When you don't feel anything at all

Where can I put you in this one-track mind?
I was growing comfortable with leaving you behind
Is this a never-ending race?
But if I gave you what you want, would you remember my name?
You were indestructible, how'd you end up in flames?
And still try to lie straight to my face
My face, so

For crying out loud tell me something
You were all that I want but now you made me believe
That I can't depend on anyone after all
For crying out loud what did you think
You say we're changing, and I would agree
But how can you fight the feeling
When you don't feel anything at all

It's like I'm digging up a picket fence
There's nothing worse than losing confidence
So stay close erase those memories

For crying out loud tell me something
You were all that I want but now you made me believe
That I can't depend on anyone after all
For crying out loud what did you think
You say we're changing, and I would agree
But how can you fight the feeling
When you don't feel anything
And how can you fight the feeling
When you don't feel anything at all

(Anything at all)
