I don't believe that I can hold you anymore Now don't say good bye, walk out the door Nobody's blaming you, I've been wrong before Across the street I see shadows and candlelight But I'm here all alone it just ain't right You know across the street I see shadows and candlelight You know it makes me feel like sighing To hear their laughter in the night The sky is crying The tears roll down by window pane So I go out walking in the rain And I'm blue again

Hey gal you didn't treat me right You got me walkin' round all through the night Can't keep my feet still I need someone but it sure ain't you Got a little bit mad 'cause you couldn't be true Somebody else will

Find me a bar, gonna spend my bread Wake up next morning under the bed Feel a lot worse like a man with an elephant's head You know I need somebody but it sure ain't you Got a little bit mad 'cause you couldn't be true Somebody else will

You know I feel so mean I could shoot down the morning sun You know I feel so mean I could shoot down the morning sun But when you hurt someone You know you wind up on the run
