Elephant Stone

The Stone Roses

Burst into heaven
Kissing the cotton clouds
Arctic sheets and fields of wheat
I can?t stop coming down

Your shrunken head Looking down on me above Send me home like an elephant stone To smash my dream of love

Dreaming till the sun goes down And night turns into day Rooms are empty I've got plenty You could move in right away

It seems like there?s a hole
In my dreams
In my dreams
In my dreams

Down through the heavens
Choke on the cotton clouds
Arctic sheets and fields of wheat
I can?t stop coming down

Your shrunken head Looking down on me above Send me home like an elephant stone To smash my dream of love

Did your bed and bookshelf go And run, run, run away These four walls saw the rise and fall And your midnight getaway

Seems like there?s a hole
In my dreams
Or so it seems
Yet nothing means anything, anymore
