

Keep Running

Swingin' Utters

"Hello again," you say to the folks at the E.D.D. you've been d ire and disgusted and come in most every day to keep yourself a live you heave insults and forever curse the almighty fuckin' t alisman that lives in the dirty church

And you keep running from yourself from everyone from each new day

You never felt true pleasure or fell I'll from real pain but yo u complain so consistently as if you've been betrayed and nothi ng's ever met the guidelines that you set for each new day and there's always something standing nonchalantly in your way To a ll the optimistic players you heave a sigh those loyalists keep counting on everything being worthwhile but you don't catch th e light of day and you've been accused of carrying on this way see, you don't believe in preaching or praise you just want to barely make it through each time consuming day (Koski)
