That Don't Matter Now

Tampa Red

I wake up every mornin' with the risin' sun Thinkin' of my baby and all the good she's done But, ooh, ooh, that don't matter now

You'll miss your water when your well go dry I miss my baby when she said goodbye But, ooh, ooh, that don't matter now

I stay so worried I don't know what to do No one to love me Or tell my trouble to Play that thing, Mr. Piano man Play it 'til it gets through to everybody Drink another pint, William? I'm gonna get drunk and pitch me a boogie woogie

Still a good fella, oh, yes Live a good fella, you'll die one Is that right? Oh, yeah

I miss her huggin' and her kisses too No one could love me like my baby do But, ooh, ooh, that don't matter now

I miss the way she starch and iron my clothes I miss the way she give me good jellyroll But, ooh, ooh, that don't matter now

I'm so unhappy, blue as I can be, oh, yes I love my baby Well, she don't care for me Ooh, yeah
