

Letting Go

Tantric

There was a time not long ago that I was truly blind
The water's deep and you should know what you have left behind
Wasted breath, fallen words upon forsaken hearts
I see you there

So if I look in your eyes
And then I see all the lies you've told
There's consequence for evidence control
You fooled me with your disguise
And all the thousands of times you've shown
A part of you in fear of letting go

I still dwell upon the past, these wounds are hard to heal
Just when you think you things will last another side's revealed
Try to learn within yourself, look to brighter days
Wasted breath, fallen words, that you say

So if I look in your eyes
And then I see all the lies you've told
There's consequence for evidence control
You fooled me with your disguise
And all the thousands of times you've shown
A part of you in fear of letting go

I am my own instability
I am to hold a part of you in me

So if I look in your eyes
And then I see all the lies you've told
There's consequence for evidence control
You fooled me with your disguise
And all the thousands of times you've shown
A part of you in fear of letting go

So if I look in your eyes
And then I see all the lies you've told
There's consequence for evidence control
You fooled me with your disguise
And all the thousands of times you've shown
A part of you in fear of letting go