

My Worst Is Yet To Come

Teddy Thompson

Such a little time has passed since you went away
Where are all these heartaches coming from?
I can hardly stand the pain of missing you today
And I know the worst is yet to come

If there was something I could find
To drive these tears from me
Then I'd go right out get me one
I've already cried enough to fill the deep blue sea
And I know the worst is yet to come

There'll be all those sleepless nights
When I just lay and cry
And the hours will seem to have no end
There'll be days when it won't matter if I live or die
Wishing I could have you back again

If there was something I could find
To drive these tears from me
Then I'd go right out get me one
I've already cried enough to fill the deep blue sea
And I know the worst is yet to come
