

I Can't Think

Teen Idols

I'm always questioning how you're dressing and how you used to be I hope you didn't pick your clothes with the thought of pleasing me I'll keep in mind that it would be fine if you weren't this way back then but it would disappoint me if you had to follow trends we may not think the same about the things we say or do but I can't think about anyone but you your decisions and my opinions aren't always quite the same but what my friends are doing's not the place to point the blame thinking for myself is something else that I have always done what about the choice I made when I said 'you're the one' woah we'll always find a way when we seem to argue it means everything's okay woah no matter what they say we'll always stick together just to face another day