

No little secrets left to compare
No feelings left for me to dare
No worries left for me to despair, only emptiness

Enticed by the familiar candlelight I see swaying up ahead
You ask, "Was it all for nothing, do you trust in me...are you special?"
You're the menace of the night, inquisitive to my request
And I ask, "Do you have the discretion, assiduity, freedom?"

I knew that it was wrong to believe I was letting go
And I can't deal with the vice below
And I knew that it was wrong; I denied you all along

You dissipate while I became an isolated fool
I am the prisoner
You disappear while I'm left here stuck in isolation
This is abandoned love
You dissipate. I'm full of hate without a hope and vision

To disappear into a cage of solitude; this is abandoned love
You dissipate without a hope and vision
You are the prisoner
You disappear into isolation

Build your cages
Cage of solitude
Build your cages
Cage of solitude
