A Minute's Silence

The Beautiful South

With a minute's silence for the dead And a minute's silence for the long-lost lovers No one's really in the mood for beer

With a minute's silence for the child And a minute's silence for the grieving mothers There's not much talking going down here

With a minute's silence for the girl With a minute's silence for the younger brother Things have never been so clear

With a minute's silence for your friend With a minute's silence for your long-lost folk A minute's silence lasts a year

A minute's silence seems a year

And the park is filled with pain For this age has laid its claim And the street's about to cry Cos it longs for passers-by It longs for passers-by
