The Birthday Massacre

I can't decide which one of us will leave here alive Your fingers beaking as I place them over mine The only thing I need is time To change your mind, I said

When all that you know Has fallen behind you It's not the past that you're afraid to see There's nobody here and no one to find you Tonight is forever

I can't decide which one of us is dreaming tonight I'm just a shadow in the light you leave behind The only thing I need is time To change your mind, I said

It's always darker at the end of every answer Like a finger down the back of your throat It's always empty in the house of every other Nothing waiting in the silence below

When all that you know Has fallen behind you It's not the past that you're afraid to see There's nobody here and no one to find you Tonight is forever
