Shouting Fire in a Crowded Room

The Bled

We have followed our leaders into the vault of a burning bank We raised our children on dead end roads waiting to death in the summer win Looking for answers that I was never meant to find

Gagging to death on these prayers my agony is self-inflicted Burn my body at the stake
My love in effigy
My songs are gasoline in the mouth of a coward shouting "Fire"

I swallow my questions down in fear before I know Too much of myself, trying to explain what keeps me falling to my knees.

The burden of living proof, I saved myself from you. In case of a new emergency, I saved myself from you. When nothing moves in the wake of regret, I saved myself from you.

I saved myself from the arms of corruption..