

Fire

The Dangerous Summer

Drive

I drive to the ocean by myself
I take all the hills I can
They make me feel so small
I keep all the windows down
And let all the air spill in my car
And into my heart
Is it too much heart?

Fire

I wish every person that I knew was in one room right now
We'd drink until we died
I'm talking about all my friends
I talk of the wars we fought back then
We're getting older now
But we're never giving in

But those legs drag again
I feel them taking over now
Walk again
I might be coming closer
So tired again
I let emotion carry me back again
And every road has given me something

I needed to go there by myself
Face all the years ahead
A map for so much more
I see the accomplishments
The steps to the walls we'll break down
And we're getting closer now
We're never giving in

But those legs drag again
I feel them taking over now
Walk again
I might be coming closer
So tired again
I let emotion carry me back again
And every road has given me something

But those legs drag again
I feel them taking over now
Walk again
I might be coming closer
So tired again
I let emotion carry me back again
And every road has given me something