

The Actress

The Delgados

This is not my house
But I know you both so well
Feels like it could be
But I can hear the bell

Days with your soulmate
Clothing for the course
Dimes on a cloth plate
He wonders if she scores

Why did you buy this?
I know you dressed in red
Hardly surprising
The bed before you wed

If I forget what I saw
This time I'll find you
See the sign on the wall
Pray it won't kill you
Book a room, book it soon
Before I find you
Move aside as they slide
Leave it to those who know best

It looks so real
But I think it's just too tall
Let me try it
I'll stand here in the hall

If I forget what I saw
This time I'll find you
See the sign on the wall
Pray it won't kill you
Book a room, book it soon
Before I find you
Leave it to those who know best

Climb the stile and relax here for awhile
Taking stock of the job you have ahead
You will find what's behind all the actions of this kind
Be it all that they're happening in my head
There's this guy who speaks and I know he knows I'm weak
Fine possessions by my side. I can't carry them; I'm fried
Oh, before I go, there's some gratitude to show
For the car, hear me out, was a star

These lights, they are hurting
And these games of names of old
Don't go confusing
The console with the board

Now I see a train station
The name I see is brain
Show me the exit now
So I can get away

If I forget what I saw
Pray it won't kill you
