Second Chance

The Echoing Green

Let's go...

When you walked away What was in your mind To turn and leave it all behind? The One True Love Was it not enough? So now, tell me what did you find?

Did pain embrace you with open arms While hurt was scratching at all your scars And love, so close yet seemed so far...

Love's not far, far behind It's never too late to change your mind When you fall and start to cry There's always a second time There's always a second time

Now that you're away What do you feel inside? A never-ending playground ride? Now you've fallen off Some kind of twisted fate So now, why do you hesitate?

You look and wish on a falling star Does it remind you of who you are? He wants to heal up your broken heart...

Love's not far, far behind It's never too late to change your mind When you fall and start to cry There's always a second time

There's always a second time There's always a second time Keep in mind, the second time

There's always a second time There's always a second time

You look and wish on a falling star Does it remind you of who you are? He wants to heal up your broken heart...

Love's not far, far behind It's never too late to change your mind When you fall and start to cry There's always a second time

Love's not far behind (Second time, second time) There's always a second time

Love's not far behind (So keep in mind, your second time) So keep in mind, your second time

There's always a second time