

All The Right Reasons

The Jayhawks

As I lay upon my bed I began dreaming of how it's going to be the day that I am free

Once I settle like the dust upon the table
But then you came along you helped me write this song

I don't know what day it is I can't recall the season
I don't remember how we got this far All I know is I'm loving you for all the right reasons In my sky you'll always be my morning star

Like a tired bird flying high across the ocean
I was outside looking in You made me live again.
From the mountains to the prairies little babies figures fill their heads visions bathed in red.

From the train in Manchester England
Lightning fills the sky
As I watched you wave goodbye From the mountains to the prairies little babies figures fill their heads visions bathed in red.
