The Jelly Jam

did you ever get that feeling that you weren't all alone did it get your senses reeling did you jump when you heard the phone do you wonder how you got here do you wonder where you've been do you feel you crossed the finish line and it was rigged, you couldn't win do you dream of summer sorrow is your mind blowing in the wind do you ever think that you will stop it do you think you can start again shall we descend do you ever hold to your feelings do you ever stand in the light do you always have to think about it do you wonder when you're not right would you listen if somebody told you did you ever fly in the night do you dream of summer sorrow is your soul blowing in the wind do you ever think that you can stop it do you know you can start again shall we descend