

Tree To Grow

The Lone Bellow

And you told me you were sorry
And you did not want to pray
Looked outside your window
As I went outside away
The street it was much warmer
On my bare feet than the rain
That fell out of the sky
It's like my thoughts fell from that day, oh

I part I want more handful of the rain that felt that day
I collected in my spare time
As I walked back home that day
And the night you said you're sorry
On the night my colors changed
I waved at your from outside
As you screamed about my shade

I'll never leave, I'll always stay
I swear on all that I keep safe
I'll never leave, I'll always stay
I swear on all that I keep safe

A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul
A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul
A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul
A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul

Pluto smile your well known face
Your tappin shoes, your wicked grace
Your precious time, your darker days
Days I left you with no space
To breathe or ever think of me
Without the worry that I'll always leave

I'll never leave, I'll always stay
I swear on all that I keep safe
I'll never leave, I'll always stay
I swear on all that I keep safe
I'll never leave, I'll always stay
I swear on all that I keep safe
I'll never leave, I'll always stay
I swear, I swear, I swear, I swear

But it gets harder and harder
But my love is older than my soul
But my love is older than my soul
But it gets harder and harder
But my love is older than my soul
But my love is older than my soul

A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul

A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul
A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul
A tree I'll grow, to let you know
My love is older than my soul.
