(Crazy for You But) Not That Crazy

The Magnetic Fields

I built a ship with my own hands To take us to the moon I took a pen in my own hand And wrote you a hundred tunes

Now I'm crazy for you, but not that crazy I'm crazy for you, but not that crazy

I pretended you were Jesus You were just dying to save me I stood beneath your window With my ukulele I made my yard a playground Just in case we had a baby

Now I'm crazy for you, but not that crazy I'm crazy for you, but not that crazy

I treated you like radium I treated you like God You were my glass menagerie Did you not find that odd? I dwelt within, and went without And broke my virgin flesh I performed acts of devotion As if you were Ganesh

Now I'm crazy for you, but not that crazy I'm crazy for you, but not that crazy
