Heavy Head

The Orwells

Dry-mouthed in the hot white sand Duct-taped in a big white van Put a bag over their heads Cut a hole and their face turns red

I got this feeling when you're not around Like a freight train runnin' through town And when they bark at it don't make a sound This whole generation don't make a

In every wolf There's a dog looking for revenge So take me to the desert And chop off my heavy, heavy head

Oh and then unleash the basket and Place it down Upon my momma's bed My heavy, heavy head

Dry-mouthed in the hot white sand On the way to the promised land Did you cross that man? (did you cross that man) Did you pay that man? (you gotta pay that man)

I got this feeling when you're not around Tied up on the Native's ground And when they bark at it don't make a sound This whole generation don't make a

In every wolf There's a dog looking for revenge So take me to the desert And chop off my heavy, heavy head

Oh and then unleash the basket and Place it down Upon my momma's bed My heavy, heavy head!
