

End of the Beginning

The Rembrandts

You were in the corner of my eyes
And facing out into the wind
I heard the sound of your voice singing

If I remembered where my head has been I'd let you on the secret in
But it's the end of the beginning

Everyday together runs
It's all we need to hang our hearts
Upon the silver moon
There's a meaning to it all
It doesn't matter anymore
'Cause it's the end of the beginning
The end of the beginning

Ohh, in the calm before the storm
The sun is shining dark and warm
Behind your eyes, my world is spinning

Every kiss melts into one
Once frozen love becomes a pool
How sweet the water runs
Like in the colors of a dream
We come together in between
'Cause it's the end of the beginning
It's the end of the beginning, yeah

Everyday melts into one
It's all we need to hang our hearts
Upon a silver moon
I could've lied to draw you naked
I'd be living down a sin
For the end of the beginning
'Cause it's the end of the beginning
End of the beginning
