(Like a) Sun Rising Through My Garden

The sky is glowing with anticipation, & casts a shadow across the nation A dust is rising from the heat of the sun I'm drinking... for the thirst to come.

But I am, contemplating oneness, summer's here... but I hardly noticed. There's no reason to be singing there's no reason to be here at all...

Occupation, I don't have one I'd lie in bed, until the cows come, I'm snowed up, inside my window, Buried in sand up to my elbows

But I am, contemplating oneness, summer's here... but I hardly noticed. There's no reason to be singing there's no reason to be here at all...

World wars & the fate of nations the sky is glowing with anticipation I'm wasting away with worry & my heart just skipped a beat But then again...

I felt much calmer I opened up a can of instant karma a yoga posture for self awareness & the devil rides out of YOUR LIFE!!!

The The