

Walking For Two Hours

The Twilight Sad

Why do they come when you're always raining?
And why can't they make a sound?
And seeing the other ones fall back down

Because you're so far from home
And you're wailing

And why do they come when you're always raining?
And why can't they make a sound?
And seeing the other ones fall back down

Because you're so far from home
And you're wailing

You're so far from home
And you're wailing

And watched it grow in a small dark corner
And why can't they make a sound?
And watching the other ones fall back down

And I've watched you go cold
And there's no tears left

And why do they come when the light stops raining?
And where have the colours gone?
And wiping their way across and now it's all gone

Because you're so far from home
And you're wailing
