The Waterboys

Well, it's got nothing to do with anything that is real You just believe in it and it's true You can sooth like an angel or sigh like a saint You can dream it and see it through

You will live to see a sea of lights Sparkling on the face of a pearl Climb your own peak, find a new streak Get yourself along to the world

Party, party

Now you've been building for yourself a cool place in the sand You're thinking that it's mighty fine You've got dust in your eyeballs, you got mud in your mouth But it's your head, it ain't mine

I've got a madman of my own to contend with Cursing in the cave of my skull Turn the other cheek, find a new streak Get yourself along to the world

Party, party

Well, I heard a rumor of a golden age Somewhere back along the line Maybe I dreamed it in a whisper or heard it in a spell It was something to do with the sign of the times

And the only thing that I remember
Is a summer like a pretty girl
Who shimmers and shines, moving in time
Shaking to the beat of the heart of the world

Party, party
Party, party, party
Party, party, party
Party, party

Say, into the beat of Lord
