Going South

The Wolfgang Press

Peace and love, a phoney kind of blubber

My instincts tell me to crash

You've got salt emissions and you know how to use them
I somehow think this won't last

So I'm moving south
To the great unknown
Yeah I'm moving south
Where the head unloads

You've got a reason some funky little demons Telling me that life is a gas You're a deconstruction a euphemism nothing Motown gives it a blast

So I'm moving south
To the great unknown
Yeah I'm going south
Where the head unloads

Called my brother, he said, "I need a lawyer" And my life is sinking at best Called my brother, he said, "I've just become A moaner who lives in the past"

You've got a vision some funky little sms Telling me that life is a gas Your misconception is a pitiful expression It's something, I'll never possess

So I'm moving south
To the great unknown
Yeah I'm moving south
Where the head unloads

Peace and love, a phoney kind of blubber
My instincts tell me to crash
You've got salt emissions and you know how to use them
I somehow think this won't last

So I'm moving south
To the great unknown
Yeah I'm moving south
Where the head unloads
