

Sorry

Toni Braxton

Eyes closed wide
I let you in my life
A silly game I stupidly played

I should've known from the start
I was bound to lose
But guess instead I kept running
Running back to you

I let you win
Now nobody wins

I'm sorry that I met you
I just should've walked away
I'm sorry that I let you
In my life and made you stay

I should've never loved you
You just showed me who you are
If none of this affects you
You're sorrier than me by far
You're so sorry

I believed
When you said to me
You wouldn't do it again
Ooh, but you did, yeah

And now I see they were right
I was also wrong
And now I'm home all alone
Singing sad love songs

I let you win
Ooh, stupid again

Now I'm sorry that I met you
I just should've walked away
I'm sorry that I let you
In my life and made you stay

I should've never loved you
You weren't who you said you are
If none of this affects you
You're sorrier than me by far

I'm sorry that I met you, you
(I just should've walked away) Just should've walked, just should've walked away
(I'm sorry that I let you) So sorry, sorry babe
(In my life and made you stay) And made you stay

How could I ever love you, yeah
(You showed me who you really are) You showed me who, you showed me who you are
(If none of this affects you) Uh-oh, uh-oh
You're sorrier than me by far

You're so sorry
