

Here's A Thought

Too Close To Touch

I don't care who you are
You roll your eyes and fake a smile
And then play the part
One that keeps them coming back for more
Won't get caught up in the mess you leave

So what's the point of feeling important
If you've got nothing to say
All of your plans are going to waste
And all your friends are fake
So here's a thought
Won't you stay the hell away from me?

Nobody knows your name
And you're so fake like everybody else
You'll never find your place
Burning bridges faster than you're building them
You won't ever learn
You're just a boring conversation with some clever words
So in other words
Nobody knows your name
And you're so fake like everybody else

I hate the way you talk
You think you're perfect and you're so evolved
That's enough
Here's my number, please don't ever call
859948 - wait, that's a mistake

So what's the point of feeling important
If you've got nothing to say

All of your plans are going to waste
And all your friends are fake
So here's a thought
Won't you stay the hell away from me?
I got the feeling

Nobody knows your name
And you're so fake like everybody else
You'll never find your place
Burning bridges faster than you're building them
You won't ever learn
You're just a boring conversation with some clever words
So in other words
Nobody knows your name
And you're so fake like everybody else

So what's the point of feeling important
If you've got nothing to say
It ain't gonna change

Nobody knows your name
And you're so fake like everybody else
You'll never find your place
Burning bridges faster than you're building them
You won't ever learn

You're just a boring conversation with some clever words
So in other words
Nobody knows your name
And you're so fake like everybody else