Fate

I've been trying to participate in masquerades The throne's been empty for too long Paradise for those who play along and the fortunate ones I've been listening to the voice at night And he is right I am the chosen one And my shepherd, he has paid my ride I will go with a smile I've been begging for the public eye Now watch me fly Can you see what I've become So expose me - I shall be released When the flesh paints the street I was walking through the valley of the living dead Did not count the tears I shed Always chasing those elusive dreams A drop of blood in the stream
