

Running In Place

Turning Point

No ground broken
No ground lost
Just faint memories
Of bridges crossed
No words left to say
No voice left to speak
I've been running from the storm
It has left me weak
Turn around
Close your eyes
Ignore the things
That you despise
Too scared to see
What's coming true
You're just running in place
From fear inside of you
You can't leave your heart
Desert your voice
I think you see
There's still a choice
To confront yourself
To reach inside
But you only see
The tears you cried
It's time to cut that leash
That drags us from the light
So foolish to think
You could escape without a fight
