Abigail (Abigail) Silk (Silk)

Now every day I been listening to "Love Supreme" I mean I've fallen in deep like a submarine I mean she's not a fashion model or the queen of the prom Or a voluptuous blonde who hangs with James Bond But she's got a confidence that caught my eye And I'm drawn like a pawn but I don't know why So I asked her over to have a soda She just laughed and said, "No, Casanova" And when I asked why she blew a kiss back with that Smile that could light up a room that was pitch black Movin slow like a rotary phone, she made it known I'm not a wild oat to be sewn So I'm always on my toes and that's part of the vibe I find her physically attractive but it's hard to describe She could be vanilla coffee or chocolate milk But words fail when it comes to Abigail Silk

I met her at the ice cream truck on my block She bought a snow cone and a Astro Pop I ordered a buttercup but I didn't have enough I asked her for a nickel and she gave me a buck I said how could I repay you, you saved the day? Let's hit a matinee and I pay your way She said she'd love to, but in the same breath She said she couldn't and I'd have to take a rain check Well, I guess she just killed that And just to save face I gave her the dollar bill back But she said the money wasn't a loan Then she kissed me on my cheek but she dropped her cone So I gave her mine and I walked her home Put her number in my memory but lost her phone And I haven't seen her since but if you do Tell Abigail to come through (tell who)
