Stuck in your world of make believe, it is you who fails You seek guidance from all the wrong places You let the words on a page dictate your life You are so blinded by these lies that you never take the time t o figure out who you truly are I will never be one of those misquided fools His blood was shed? Supposedly for the sake of mankind Its time to open your ears to the truth His blood was shed? [x2] It's nothing but a fairy tale Some ink on a page, some ink on a page I know the truth So close that book, so close that book Never again Get caught in the story Never again I will never be one of those misguided fools But your world of lies is your home We are on our own I make my own choice No one is taking credit for my story The masses are blind Blinded by faith, leading them on No one controls my destiny No one, no one but me I know the truth, we are on our own
