

What Would Your Memories Do

Vern Gosdin

What would your memories do
If they didn't have my mind to run through
If they didn't have my heart to break into
Oh, what would your memories do

I wonder what would happen if one morning
Your memories woke up to find my mind gone
Would they go as crazy without me
As I have without you would they last as long

If someday they found the door to my mind
Had been locked from inside by my heart
What would they do if they couldn't
Use you any longer to tear me apart

What would your memories do
If they didn't have my mind to run through
If they didn't have my heart to break into
Oh, what would your memories do
