

Close Your Eyes

Voyager

Time, they say that it heals all the wounds

And they say it will be over soon

But the lines on my face are a sign of the times

They make scars on your heart disappear

They pretend that there's hope and no fear

They are trying to cover the face of the times

I'm standing here

I'm standing here

I'm faced with careless ego stares

I try to wash away the lines of life

Close, close your eyes

Close, close your eyes

I can now see your pain

In your imagination

I can now see the strain

and your exasperation

I can now see all your grief

And your devolution

I cannot see relief

In your absolution