

Flowers On A Wall

Waking Ashland

It's been so long since I've caught this cold
And times rolls on and I stand still
And it's been three years since I laughed out loud
And I was so messed up and so worn out
Being someone else, fooling just myself

So where, where will I find you?
I'm so scared to turn and face myself
I know you'll hear me loud
Above all the sound of this world

I'm seeing ghosts, I'm seeing lots of rain
The signs of long, long days ahead of me
See the sun rise, watch her spread her wings
Across the great divide and to the open plains
Cross the line again

So where, where will I find you?
So scared to turn and face myself
I know you'll hear me loud
Above all the sound

Speak slowly, speak slowly, speak slowly
Sleep walking, sleep walking, sleep walking down now

So where, and where will I find you?
I'm so scared to turn and face myself
But I know you'll hear me loud

So where, where will I find you?
I'm so scared to turn and face myself
And I know you'll hear me loud
Above all the sound of this world

Where will I find you?
So scared to turn and face myself
I know you'll hear me loud
Above all the sound of this world
