

Red Ruby Heart

Wardrum

Love was a seed sowed into my core on the day I met you
Then life only mattered if somehow I'd spend it with you
Words were still enough to possess my feelings
But I could not change, be someone else to fit your needs

Yet a restless kind of spirit full of dreams, you know that
Living in this world of deception we won't have a chance
Deep into your eyes there's a flame still burning
There's also enough ego and blame to keep me away

Tried to get all my points across
I won't keep on pretending
I'm not willing to bear the cross
I'm not willing to stay

As the world will keep on turning
Every hour and every day
My desires will keep on burning
To light up and show the way

Now that all the paths are walked and all is said between us
I know that there's nothing in me you can win anymore
Words are not enough to possess my feelings
And I cannot change, be someone else to fit your needs

Tried to get all my points across
I won't keep on pretending
I'm not willing to bear the cross
I'm not willing to stay

As the world will keep on turning
Every hour and every day
My desires will keep on burning
To light up and show the way