

A Sky for Shoeing Horses Under

WHY?

rain goes perfect with a nosdam mixtape the last streetlights stay on well after dawn kings fall to pawns he dropped the needle let the song say it the kind of morgue with a gong to tell you when but the room's rules will bend and the staff will make you laugh h
my dad wore this face in old photographs calico cats out stare me from behind a junkyard fence high on khat i let my stare go soft but pretend it's not when i'm eyed i tounge my bottom teeth and look at the sidewalk in front of me and my tennis shoes go in and out of the frame another sleuth footed empty Y walking on goose eggs in the mission swap meet brown 31 fishnet hat cocked to the right i only played chess once in my life and i lost looks like a sky for shoeing horses under looks like a good sky to die under
