Life will never be the same
And there will never be a change
There's something in the sky we all try to describe
But there will never be a name

I ain't talking about a shower from above When I tell you I'm prepared for the reign So metaphorically speaking, this will be around forever Cause there will never be a drain

My flood for a flow will remain

Even when I lose everything that I've gained

If God is the music and the devil is the fame

I'm a rebel in the making cause I'm leveling the plane

Trying to unlock from the pressure and the pain But the devil getting clever with the chains I knew what I was before I entered in the game I'm just trying to understand what I became

See, I was told
You can't knock me down
So please understand me now, now
See, I was told
You can't knock me down
So please understand me now, now